SGS additionally issued a UL2849 certificate for the Bafang M620 drive system and UL1004 certificate for the Bafang eFat G062 motor. Of particular significance is that certification of the M620 system marks a new stage for Bafang, moving from single component certification to systematic integration certification.

Following certification, Bafang will continue to utilize its in-house laboratory for R&D procedure and to ensure all products meet the highest standard in both technical ability and quality.
